Contenuti e obiettivi formativi	Aim of this Lab is to present in full details how to frame a sustainable and integrated form of marine tourism development, enacted by Our vision on integrated tourism development intends to address cultural and natural heritage as entangled concepts, that cannot be separated. The emerging global sensitivity for a green approach to tourism requires in fact the superposition of locality and sustainability as independent concepts. The involvement of local communities in planning and mastering territorial and marine resources contributes to protect situated forms of knowledge, and to strengthen environment preservation through communities' awareness. The Lab intends to show how the confluence of natural + cultural heritage sensitivities, as well as the convergence of local knowledge + global frameworks, is not only possible, but also close to our direct experience.
Articolazione del laboratorio	1) The conceptual frameworks and theoretical background necessary to understand the excursion proposal will be provided during three seminars, to be held by Prof. Bougleux and the selected expert, in the second semester of a.y. 2025/26 2) The practical experience will consist in a Summer School taking place in the Summer 2026. <ul style="list-style-type: none">- The Students will be hosted on a traditional wooden gullet for one week, together with professor and local experts who will present and introduce to the local environment and heritage, according to a daily

	schedule of visits, seminars and workshops. The students will meet the actors of the local community network which give life to the sustainable and integrated tourism development. Meetings with local stakeholders, working seminars on board and excursions will touch the following crucial topics: marine biodiversity, local cultural and museums heritage, history of territorial resources and local memory archives. <ul style="list-style-type: none">- The report production will consist in a written/media/visual presentation of the achievements of the Lab / Summer School, with emphasis on the relevance of the residential experience offered in order to acquire a direct approach to the topics developed.
